To St. Margaret's for the wedding of Bill Harcourt's daughter, Elizabeth Ann, and young Gascoigne. Superb music. Came away with Walt Butterworth and had a chat with him on departmental affairs at the reception, held in Claridge's.

Then to Charles Street, where Betty and Bobbity Salisbury came to dine with us. To me, he is the wisest of living statesmen -- he has every quality and attribute of greatness, and lacks only health. We talked at length about the French and German situation. I love Betty - she is real Charles II.
